SAFETY

► RESPIRATORY PROTECTION

Airborne contaminants are unwanted by-products of production processes that can seriously affect workers' comfort levels and ultimately their health.

Workers can effectively be protected from saw or silica dust exposure, or adhesive fumes by a range of special protective masks. However, the technical protection levels don't count for much if the respirator isn't comfortable to wear under extended periods of use.

Moldex is a specialist in respiratory protection products that combines superior levels of respiratory protection with ingenious solutions that address user comfort. Their disposable respirators are designed to offer cool, comfortable and collapse resistant protection that workers will find acceptable to wear all day.
